"Think of me"

September 2 – October 29, 2011

think of me

you may read UKNIT as a unit.

as knitting produces a unity (a blank(et)) what you see is deconstruction of unity into pattern and movement.

there is no guiding thread going through the work.

it is temporary.

it's rhythm, as sense is movement.

rhythm as stored on tapes or reels and reels as cultural techniques and pre-conscious memories in transitions.

the dust is moving anti-clockwise into the navel like all cyclones in the north.

think of me

(whispers the dust*)
